

THE GREAT BIG GREEN WEEK

80% of the world's farmland is managed by smallholder farmers

By 2050 half of all coffee growing land will no longer be suitable for coffee due to climate change

From deforestation and changing weather patterns to rising temperatures, water scarcity and contamination, climate change is making life difficult for small scale farmers

The average person in Cote d'Ivoire has a carbon footprint 17 times smaller than the average British person

Fairtrade gives farmers and workers the tools and skills they need to diversify their income and become resilient

